National charity hails Northamptonshire Domestic Abuse Service for opening new refuge

Following the announcement today that Northamptonshire Domestic Abuse Service has opened a new refuge for male victims in the county Mark Brooks, Chair of the ManKind Initiative, a national charity support male victims, said “We are delighted that Northamptonshire Domestic Abuse Service has opened this refuge. It shows they are a forward thinking and inclusive organisation. It will provide a much-needed safe space for men to escape to and start rebuilding their lives especially as there is no other similar place in the area. We hope that neighbouring counties and services follow their lead. “

Information about the service can be found here: <http://ndas.co/wp-content/uploads/2018/02/NDAS-Inserts-Latest-PRINT.-Male-refuge-redone.pdf>

There are currently 99 spaces for men run by 24 organisations – 28 places are dedicated for men and 71 can either be more men or women. This is before the new spaces in Northamptonshire are added. The nearest to Northampton is Birmingham, Derby or Essex.

In 2016, 1707 men and 5030 women reported to Northamptonshire Police that they were victims of domestic abuse.
